

The Life of a Lineman

MESSAGE FROM GENERAL MANAGER ALAN LESLEY

They wake before the sun, pour steaming cups of coffee and kiss their families goodbye. After swinging by the office to get the day's orders, they climb into their trucks and head out. Lineworkers form a solid team with one job: Deliver safe, reliable electricity. But that job can change in a million ways when rough weather sets in.

We often take power—and the men and women who provide it—for granted. Let's take a moment and stand in their boots.

Linemen have to work safely and efficiently—all while 40 feet in the air wearing sturdy, thick rubber gloves that protect their lives but make performing many tasks more difficult. On a typical day, lineworkers maintain electrical distribution lines or build service to new homes and businesses. They have a lot on their plates. But when our dispatch center calls with a problem, everything else takes a backseat.

Power restoration takes precedence over a lineworker's daily to-do list. We have crews standing by to serve you 24 hours a day, every day of the week, including weekends and holidays.

Can you imagine getting a call at 3 a.m. telling you that you must go work outside during bad weather? Not many people are even willing to face storms, but our lineworkers face the harsh elements every day, all to serve you.

Lineworkers also focus on safety. The lives of co-workers are on the line. Job safety is important to everyone, no matter the occupation. But for lineworkers, there can be no slipups or careless actions. Mistakes can cost someone a limb or their life. That's one of the reasons linemen form a brotherhood. When linemen put their lives in the hands of co-workers every day, they become more than colleagues—they're family.

That sense of family extends to electric co-ops across the nation. One of our principles is Cooperation Among Cooperatives. We help other co-ops in their time of need, and they extend that service to us, too. It's reassuring to know that if a severe storm strikes, a national team of lineworkers stands ready to answer the call.

To be ready to respond no matter the situation or weather conditions, linemen are highly trained. At CECA, lineworkers go through regular training to ensure that they can work safely with various kinds of equipment. The equipment itself is tested regularly, too.

These highly skilled workers help to provide the power we need to light our homes and businesses every day. They endure harsh weather and long hours, all to make our lives better. Please take a moment to thank them.

Breckenridge FFA Helps Clinic

There's no doubt that the Ag Department at Breckenridge High School is doing great things. The students proved that back in November when their chapter won Agnes, the AgTexas tractor. But they didn't stop there. This month they took their fundraising a step further when they selected Resource Care Clinic of Breckenridge to be their project for National FFA week, a weeklong tradition in February designated to honor George Washington in recognition of his legacy as an agriculturist and farmer, and to enlighten communities about FFA, its members and all they do for their communities and their youths.

The Breckenridge FFA chapter's efforts brought in several thousand pounds of clothing to be delivered to the clinic. "We didn't do it to get recognition for the chapter," Melissa Parker, chapter vice president, said. "We did it because we wanted to be recognized as part of the community so they know we are here to back them up if they need us, and that we're here to help them because we are part of the community."

POWER TIP
Save ENERGY
Save MONEY

Appliances account for about 13 percent of your home's energy use.

If they have energy-saving settings, use them! If your appliances are nearing voting age, consider replacing them with new, energy-efficient models. And remember to try smart power strips for smaller appliances and electronics that continue to draw power even when turned off. For more tips, visit EnergySavers.gov.
